Insect Walk on Berryhill Fields

Residents of one of the City's largest housing estates are being given the chance to learn more about the insect life at a popular beauty spot, with local expert Dr Dave Skingsley, on one of two daytime walks.

Peter Williams, Events Organiser for the group, the Friends of Berryhill Fields, said: "The Insect Walks will give people the chance to learn about all the interesting insects and bugs that live on the Berryhill Fields whilst enjoying a pleasant stroll."

The Fields were once the subject of a £2Million Millennium Award that included making them much more accessible with paths around the site, as well as upgrading the Berryhill Greenway, but sturdy footwear, and a magnifying glass to study the insects!, are recommended.

Peter added: "Younger people are welcome to attend the event too, but under-18s should be accompanied by a responsible adult."

Entry to the walks is free and anyone interested is invited to meet at the top end of Arbourfield Drive, Eaton Park for the 10a.m. walk, or at the Hall Hill Drive, Berryhill entrance to the Fields for the 2p.m. walk – both walks are this Saturday, 22nd May, 2010. Taking a packed lunch is also recommended for anyone wishing to attend both walks.
